BACKGROUND

The City of Santa Clara, California is located in Northern California in the heart of Silicon Valley. Nestled in the southern part of the San Francisco Bay Area, Santa Clara is approximately 45 miles south of San Francisco and adjacent to cities such as San Jose, Sunnyvale, and Cupertino.

Santa Clara is a midsize city packing big-city assets. Known for its legacy of innovation and bold thinking, Santa Clara invites global thinkers, trailblazers, and risk-takers to delve into a dynamic blend of culture, history, and high-energy attractions—like Levi's® Stadium and California's Great America. Home to several Fortune 500 headquarters like NVIDIA and Intel, Santa Clara is rooted in cutting-edge innovation. Paired with premier shopping, diverse culinary adventures, and unbeatable access to Northern California, the city offers a vibrant atmosphere charged with optimism, ambition and competitive energy.

Santa Clara offers unmatched accessibility with three airports located within 45 minutes, including San José Mineta International Airport (SJC), San Francisco International Airport (SFO), and Oakland International Airport (OAK). The city is served by regional transit systems via Amtrak, Santa Clara Valley Transportation Authority (VTA), Altamont Corridor Express (ACE), Caltrain, and accessible via rideshare.

DID YOU KNOW:

- Santa Clara takes its name from Mission Santa Clara de Asís, founded on January 12, 1777, by Spanish Franciscans and named in honor of Saint Clare of Assisi, the first woman to have a California mission dedicated to her. This mission lent its name to both the city and county of Santa Clara. Today, the mission stands at the heart of Santa Clara University.
- Santa Clara is home to California’s oldest operating university, Santa Clara University, founded in 1851. The university is ranked among the top 15% of U.S. higher education institutions by U.S. News & World Report.
- Santa Clara has always been a hub of innovation. In the late 1800s, it flourished as an agricultural center known as “The Valley of Heart’s Delight,” famed for its lush orchards. With the arrival of the Transcontinental Railroad, the city became the fruit basket of the nation—laying the foundation for the pioneering spirit that still defines Santa Clara today.
- Known as the “Gateway to Silicon Valley”, Santa Clara is home to some of the U.S.’s top tech giants, including NVIDIA, Intel, Advanced Micro Devices (AMD), Applied Materials, Agilent, and more. The Intel Museum, located at Intel’s headquarters in Santa Clara, showcases the history of computing and has free admission!
- Santa Clara has more patents per capita than most places in the country, thanks to its prime location in Silicon Valley.
- California’s Great America in Santa Clara is home to one of the tallest and fastest wooden roller coasters on the West Coast, Gold Striker.
- Levi’s® Stadium has a ‘Green Roof’ and one of the largest solar-paneled installations in any NFL stadium.
- Santa Clara has strong ties to the Olympic Games, anchored by the renowned Santa Clara Swim Club—recognized for producing more International Swimming Hall of Fame inductees than any other club in the world. The club has trained dozens of Olympians and medalists.

WHERE INNOVATION MEETS SUSTAINABILITY

Known for its groundbreaking technological innovations, the City of Santa Clara is home to some of Silicon Valley's most influential companies, including NVIDIA, Intel, Advanced Micro Devices (AMD), SoundHound, Agilent, and others that shape industries globally.

Santa Clara brings sustainability, innovation, and convenience together in one bold, forward-thinking destination. From cutting-edge energy initiatives and world-class amenities to eco-conscious transit and event venues, Santa Clara offers visitors an experience that's as responsible as it is rewarding. Here's what makes Santa Clara a true innovation hub:

- Santa Clara is charging ahead, thanks to its own municipal electric utility, Silicon Valley Power (SVP). SVP delivers clean wind and solar energy across the city, delivering 100% carbon-free power to residential customers.
- Santa Clara offers immersive technology experiences, from hands-on exhibits at the Intel Museum to nearby attractions just a short drive away, including the Googleplex Visitor Experience, the Computer History Museum, and Apple Park Visitor Center.
- Levi's® Stadium was the first NFL stadium to achieve LEED Gold certification.
- Santa Clara has emerged as one of the nation's biggest hubs for data centers and is currently home to 74 of them. From streaming video to ChatGPT requests, much of the information that passes through computers around the globe is powered by the rows of servers in data centers right here in Santa Clara.
- The Santa Clara Convention Center is a certified Santa Clara Green Power Champion, demonstrating a strong commitment to sustainability.
- Santa Clara makes it easy for visitors to travel sustainably while getting to where they need to go via Public Transit, Bike-Friendly Streets, and EV Charging Stations.
